

A Little Bitty Bug

This is another finger play created at a workshop I did for the King County Library staff in Seattle Washington. I gave staff the first line, and they developed a finger play. I then put a melody to it. Children will want to sing this several times in a row! Exaggerating the motions makes it especially fun!

A Little Bitty Bug

A little bitty bug
(indicate tiny with thumb and index finger)

Too small to hug
(hug self)

Was sittin' on a rug, just a 'sittin' on a rug
(tap floor)

And then to show his might
(put dent arms out at side with closed fists, as if showing muscles- exaggerate!)

He took a daring flight
(shoot one hand straight up in the air)

He landed on my nose
(spiral finger down to tip of nose)

And what do you suppose? He flew down to my toes!
(Spiral finger down to toes, singing and moving slowly)
