

Snowflake Game

What do people and snowflakes have in common? No two are the same! To play this game, make enough snowflakes for each child. There are so many great ideas for art projects- check out Pinterest, or use your own design. Letting children make them insure each one really will be different. Then, either on the back or in the middle of a larger one, cut out and glue a photo of each child. Place the snowflakes on the ground and have children walk around them during first two lines of the song. When lyrics direct them to find their pictures, just follow the directions. Short and sweet and very repeatable!

Here are links to some of my favorite Pinterest paper snowflake ideas. But there are many more- look around for a design that works for your age group, time frame, and materials.

Paper snowflakes using children's names- very clever!

childhood101.com/2015/11/name-snowflakes

Simple directions for painting a snowflake, so no cutting involved

jenniferrizzo.com/2015/12/how-to-paint-a-snowflake.html

Snowflakes constructed on coffee filters with pasta and straws; simple and crafty!

iheartcraftythings.com/coffee-filter-snowflake-craft.html

Snowflake Game

Snowflakes falling, no two the same
Come let's play a little snowflake game
Find your picture, now here's your clue
Like a snowflake there's only one of you Hold your snowflake up and turn around
Now let it drift slowly down to the ground